I'm having trouble finding a no cd patch for Microsoft Combat Flight Sim v1.0. It runs ok with out a cd in the drive. I can't find the old train or the airlines though. Can someone help. A: There are two ways to get around Microsoft Combat Flight Simulator's (MSFS) "installation error". First, read the forums FAQ for more information. Second, follow the steps below. While in MSFS's Setup Menu press START to open the Utility Menu. Navigate to the Properties Button (first button next to the Settings button) and press the Edit Button. From the File System menu, press the Edit Button. Choose Disk from the Edit menu. In the Disk Information section, locate the CD_CLASSACS table (on Windows XP, press CTRL-F and enter "CD_CLASSACS"). From the Edit menu, press DELETE. Find and highlight the first entry in the file. Right-click (CTRL+Click on Windows XP) and choose Copy from the context menu. This is the first boot sector of the CD-ROM and must be correctly formatted for use as a boot disk by setting the Master Boot Record (MBR) with the boot code and partition table. Back in the Properties, press START to go back to Setup Menu. Navigate to the Start menu and select Command Prompt. In the Command Prompt command window, enter the following and press ENTER. cd %systemdrive%\ cd %programfiles%\ cd "c:\program files (x86)\microsoft\ cd microsoft\combat\ cd combat\ cd no cd patch\ The above command takes you to the start of the CD-ROM. Run the command. If it is successful, MSFS should open and you should be able to launch the game with the no-CD patch. If you are unsure if you entered the instruction correctly, open a command window in the Windows XP Start menu and type the following. for /f "skip=3" %

Standard treatment for patients with non-small cell lung cancer (NSCLC) with a tumor-node-metastasis (TNM) stage of IIIA-III B is a combination of platinum-based chemotherapy with concurrent radiation and an optional molecular targeted therapy. Targeted therapies blocking the epidermal growth factor receptor or vascular endothelial growth factor have emerged in clinical trial phase III studies. It is unknown whether genomics will dictate the use of 1 of the currently available immunotherapy agents. We sought to assess the correlation of predictive biomarkers for immunotherapy with survival in this population. We conducted a retrospective analysis of 95 consecutive patients with stage IIIA-III B NSCLC treated at our institution with platinum-based chemotherapy and concurrent radiation. We identified clinicopathologic features associated with overall survival using the Kaplan-Meier method and determined the correlation of these predictive factors with clinical outcomes and treatment response. Our analysis showed that although most patients are judged as "intermediate risk," they have a significant probability of survival. We evaluated the prognostic markers of overall survival in the entire cohort and found a significant association between high levels of programmed death ligand 1 or programmed death 1 ligand 2 and survival.
